Exchange Notice

August 16, 2024

Effective August 16, 2024, until further notice the following products are subject to an Exchange Market Maker Program. Under the Program a designated market maker is obligated to maintain a maximum spread and provide a minimum level of liquidity for the products specified below during specified trading hours (referred to here for convenience as “maintaining the liquidity conditions”). Please note the following:

- There are exceptions to the designated market maker’s obligations to maintain the liquidity conditions, even during the availability hours. If an exception applies, or if a designated market maker fails to adhere to its requirements, spreads may widen and liquidity may decrease, which may result in worse pricing.
- The designated market maker is only obligated to maintain the liquidity conditions during specified availability hours. Outside of these hours, spreads may widen and liquidity may decrease, which may result in worse pricing.
- The specific markets and availability may change, as new markets may be added, previously covered products removed, and the availability may change. Check Kalshi’s Notices page for the most up to date information.

Changes in this Notice:

1. Removal of USDJPY, USDJPYH, EURUSD, EURUSD series
